

YOU KNOW THE SIGNS. WHEN SHOULD YOU GO?

As soon as you see them.

Chest discomfort, shortness of breath, pain in the arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach can all be signs of an impending heart attack. If you have them, it's important to act fast. Studies show a large reduction in death rates and heart damage in patients treated within one hour of the start of symptoms. And the place to go is the Chest Pain Center at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Accredited by the Society of Chest Pain Centers, our center is convenient and ready to help when you need it. So, if your yellow "warning" light starts flashing, don't ignore the warning signs and symptoms. Get to the Chest Pain Center (or call 911) before it's too late. We can help you back on the road to life.
